

PIECE.
Famous "Rain, Speed."
The great English none is more popu-which now graces the gallery under the main, Steam and Speed. first exhibited in 1844. It possible to reproduce this adethe origin of this picture furnishes an interesting tale.
The story was told to him by a friend, Lionel Lincoln. It seems that she was travelling one night in the early days of the Great Western railway from Exeter to London. "When I had taken off my coat and smoothed my ruffled plumes and generally settled myself," she tells, "I looked up to see the most wonderful eyes I ever saw, steadily, luminously, clairvoyantly, kindly, pa-ternally looking at me. The hat was over the forehead, the mouth and chin buried in the brown velvet coat collar of the brown greatcoat. Well, we went on, and the storm went on more and more until we reached Bristol, where we waited ten minutes. My old gentleman rubbed the side window with his coat cuff, in vain. He attacked the center window, again in vain, so blurred and blotted was it with the torrents of rain. A momentary hesitation and then, "Young lady, would you mind putting down this window?"
"Oh, no, not at all."
"You may be drenched, you know."
"Never mind, sir."
"Immediately down went the window and out went the old gentleman's head and shoulders, and I said, "Oh, but you will be drenched," he replied. But he had opened the window for me to see. Such a night!
Throes of elemental and artificial and noises I never saw nor He drew up the window as we went. I leaned back for some with closed eyes, then opened and it was well worth it." He smiled and again steadily but inoffensive pe-my face. The next year, I came it was, going to the academy, I turned at once, as I always did, to see what Turners there were. Imagine my feelings! There stood written "Rain, Steam and Speed, Great Western, June, 1843." I had found out whom the seeing eyes belonged to. As I stood looking at the picture I heard a wondrous voice behind me say, "You here, now, look at that! Ain't it just like Turner? Who ever saw such a ridiculous conglomeration?
I turned very quietly round and said, "I did. I was in the train that night, and it is perfectly and wonderfully true!" After that I walked quietly away.—Helen Zimmern in Metropolitan Magazine.

A WICKED MAN.
How He Planned to Turn the Tables on His Unsuspecting Wife.
He looked at his watch, debated with himself for a minute and then said: "Go on with the game. I'll sit in a little longer."
"Likely to be somebody sitting up for you?" asked the dealer.
"Sure to be," was the reply.
"Possibility that the party who is sitting up will be mad clear through?" inquired the player opposite.
"Not only a possibility, but a certainty," answered the man who had looked at his watch, "and I don't mind saying that if it was any other night I wouldn't dare stay another minute."
"What is there peculiar about tonight?" asked the dealer.
"The fact that I received this today," replied the player as he took an envelope from his pocket, and held it up.
"Letter?" they asked.
"No; bill," he answered. "Millener's bill."
"Don't see," began one of the others.
"Why, it's simple enough," returned the man with the bill. "Can't you always find something to kick about in a millener's bill?" They admitted that they usually could.
"Well," he went on, "there's an item for a hat here that's all right.
She told me she was going to get it and what it would cost, but here's another item of $4.35 for ribbons and things that would give me a chance to make my roar. I'll turn loose the minute I get in the house —before she has a chance to say a word."
"Well?" they said.
"Well," he answered, "that will put her on the defensive at the start, and then I'll keep it up until a certain lecture or any kind of a sarcastic reference to the club is about as far from her thoughts as we are from the Philippines. Just you show me a man who can't work out his own salvation when he once succeeds in putting a woman on the defensive, and I will show you a man who has not been married long.
Give me two cards, please."—Ex-

THE LOWLY ONION.
Odors, Joys, Virtues and Superstitions of the Pungent Bulb.
A London real estate agent says that the smell of onions cooking in an apartment house is a source of annoyance to the great majority of the flat dwellers. In the novels of George Gissing there are constant allusions to the smell of fried fish in the houses where his half starved authors and poverty stricken women were obliged to live. Now, as it seems, one onionized flat makes a whole house wretched.
There are boarding houses so charged with the smell of rank cooking perpetrated for years that the very walls emit it, as in the memorable pension where Rastignac became acquainted with Vautrin, but the onion is not here the chief offender. The smell of onion soup, dear to the Parisian concierge, still lingers gratefully in the nostrils of the American after many years as he thinks wistfully of his student days. No reflective person as he climbs the stairs of an apartment house is offended seriously by smell of onions as he passes a door. He thinks of the glory of beefsteak smothered in onions, of onion-cooked in cream, of onions dry, but unfolding their hearts, of fried onions as a side dish for heroes. He thinks and sighs, for his own Arabella cannot endure the smell, not knowing that fine line, "husband and wife defying the world with mustard."
The ancients frowned on the bulb as a food and classed it with garlic and leeks, as of an acid nature, of unwholesome juices. "When twice boiled they give little nourishment, but when unboiled they do not nourish at all," says Paulus Aeginet-a, and Burton, advising as to the diet of the melancholy, dismisses the onion as troublesome to the head.
The people at large pay no heed to these sayings. To the man who smiles at the conflicting opinions of dietists the onion is healthful when plainly boiled. As a child he was taught that it was good for a cold. These same ancients thought highly of it as a medicine. It occasionally a rapid growth of hair, it breaks hard tumors. Chewed, it is beneficial in paralysis of the tongue. It is eminently rubefa-cent. Its juice is useful in suffusion and dimness of vision from "thick humors." Dioscorides recommends it as a cataplasm with salt and honey for the bite of a mad dog. There are many uses of assistance in deafness. Italians in the north end the insides of little onions and stuff them in aching ears of their children. They leave them there for weeks. An onion put under the pillow will bring dreams of the loved one. The thickness of its skin determines the mil-dness or severity of the coming winter. But to dream of onions is a bad sign. In some countries it presages sickness. What says the homely poet?
To dream of eating onions means Much strife in thy domestic scene, Secrets found out or else betrayed,
And many falsehoods made and said.
The French maiden looks forward to marriage that she may read the ingenious novels of her country. Are there not American maid-ens who would fain be wives that they may eat onions without the thought of a disquieted, too fastidious wooer? Happy the man that finds one! Else, like the children of Israel, he will remember tearfully the Egypt of bachelorship, "the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlic."—Boston Herald.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.
THEIR UNCEASING WORK KEEPS US STRONG AND HEALTHY.
All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Wants All
To Know
Riding, Ga., September 12, 1900.
MESSRS. E. O. DE WITT & CO., Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen—Yours of the 6th to hand.
In reply will say, most assuredly we will do any and every thing for the benefit of the suffering. I will answer all correspondence as to my own case. I recommend KODOL to all I hear grumbling about their stomachs, and have bought many their first bottle. All that is required is a trial of KODOL. It talks for itself.
Yours very truly,
O. N. CORNELL.
